6. Remarks and Other Relevant Information:

Dan Cox acquired the property that constitutes the proposed place of use in approximately 1979, and planted the orchards that are present on the property today. He submitted an application for a permit, a copy of which is attached hereto, and provided a proof of appropriation of water, a copy also of which is attached hereto. He was issued a permit, a copy of which is attached hereto. The application and the permit are both for water to irrigate 100 acres. Mr. Cox actually owned about 97 acres. Unfortunately, in the process, he neglected to include the complete legal description of the property that constituted the complete legal description of the property that constituted the place of use of the water. A parcel was inadvertently omitted. This Change Application is submitted to correct that oversight. The water has been continuously applied to the orchards since they were planted in their present locations and this Change Application is only necessitated because of the oversight in including the entire property that is the place of use and was the place of use from the inception of this use.
